

Henry Irving parts his hair in the middle, and still has made life a success.

The New York Sun will have to find another candidate for the presidency, Holman says he won't run.

President Arthur has designated the 20th day of November as a day of national thanksgiving. The proclamation is brief and very characteristic.

The Gazette has received through the kindness of ex-Congressman Williams, an elegantly bound copy of Mr. Blaine's memorial oration on the late President Garfield.

Mr. John Wauwamaker, the dry goods merchant of Philadelphia, has been president of the Young men's christian association of that city thirteen years, and during that time has given the association $100,000 in cash.

They have started the story that Mr. Tilden proposes to get married. This is a campaign dodge, and is made for the purpose to have the country believe that he is in good health. His resources for advertising his good health, are unlimited.

Statistics from the agricultural department at Washington, show that at the beginning of the year 1883, 986,000 hogs in the United States, their aggregate value being $201,921,224. Iowa is the leading hog state, having 5,109,445 head, while Illinois comes next, with 3,970,764.

Last week's issue of the Scientific American states that the deepest sounding ever made, has just been accomplished near the entrance to DeBering sea. Bottom was struck at 27,930 feet, or over five miles. The cast was made from the United States school-ship Thetis. The shallowest water in the middle of the Atlantic, 4,886 feet, shows the submergence of mountains 10,556 feet.

The editor of the Madison Democrat gives his readers the following bit of information: "If J. I. Case should be killed on the cars through the negligence of the railway company, his administrator could recover for the benefit of his widow or dependent family, not to exceed $5,000. But if Jay-Eye-See should also be killed in the same accident they might recover $60,000. For the purpose of being killed in an accident the horse is worth twelve times as much as his master, and worth a dozen husbands."

The gamblers of St. Louis have "made a club with which to thump their own heads." One gambler in that city brought suit against another gambler, charging him with keeping a poker room. Under the Johnson law, in the state of Missouri, gambling is a felony, and in the suit brought in the criminal court of St. Louis to recover money lost at the poker rooms, Judge Noonan held that poker was a game of chance, and therefore a felony. The effect of this decision will be to close all the poker rooms in that city. Something good has at last come out of one gambler "squealing" on another.

The statistics furnished by the Episcopal convention in New York, show the growth of that church in the United States during the past fifty years. In 1832 there were less than 600 clergy and 500 parishes in 18 dioceses, with only about 30,000 communicants. The report of this year show a total of 3,572 clergy and 2,387 parishes in 48 dioceses, with 872,484 communicants. Thus the number of communicants has multiplied ten-fold in fifty years, while the population of the United States has increased about four-fold. These figures give only a comparative and not a positive idea of the strength of the church, for the reason that the parishes reported do not include all the baptized members or adherents of the church nor even all the regular church attendants, but only the actual confirmed communicants in each congregation. While these numbers are less imposing than those of some other denomination, the growth of the church has been remarkably large.

One paper in Milwaukee tries to make the public believe that the late reception and banquet given in Milwaukee to Alexander Mitchell, had a political significance—that of pushing him forward for the position of secretary of the treasury should the democrats carry the election next year. There may be some ground for this belief, but the probabilities are that there are none. The Sentinel says, "the contingency is remote, and probably the reception had no such purpose. Still, if the democrats ever do secure the administration the country would feel a measure of security in the conduct of financial affairs by such a man as Mr. Mitchell. All a strong man could do to hunt the evils of democratic financial legislation he would do. He is one of the few able democrats who has never wavered in the advocacy of correct principles of finance. One of the ablest of financial speeches ever made in congress was made by Mr. Mitchell while a member of the house of representatives."

Five years ago when 30,000 Americans visited Europe in one season, the "rush" was regarded as unprecedented, and something quite remarkable. But in a year or two the number swelled to 50,000, and last year it was not far from 75,000; but Henry F. Gillis estimates that during the past season 130,000 Americans visited Europe. The increase in the facilities for crossing the Atlantic, and a better understanding as to how to traveling economically on the continent, have taken additional thousands to Europe during the present year. But then, there is a greater interest growing among the people of this country than before regarding European cities and the attractions they offer to sight-seers. The art galleries of Europe contain the greatest art production of the world, and as our people become better informed as to art and grow easier in circumstances, an inclination is increased to visit the old world. Then again, it is becoming fashionable to visit Europe, and as there is a potent power in fashion, thousands go abroad annually for no other purpose than to prove their loyalty to fashion.

HUNTING HIM DOWN.

The Butcher of Zora Burns Reported to Have been Found.

Arrest of a Man at Hampton, Iowa, Who Was Hired for the Crime—A New Clue Discovered Near Lincoln.

LINCOLN, Ill., Oct. 29.—States Attorney Forrest's alliance is due to the arrest of a man in Hampton, Iowa, who has confessed that he was hired to murder Zora Burns. The prisoner will tend to explain matters more fully than anything which has yet occurred. The state depends very much on the result of his trip.

A NEW CLUE.
A new clue was obtained in the Zora Burns murder mystery. It is publicly announced that there is a person ready to go on the stand at the proper time and give evidence which will surely fasten the guilt on someone. Who this person is, or who the luckless one will be, is a matter of conjecture. The confession of the man who was hired to obtain the money and facts, but failed. A party visited a spot where a strange and mysterious man said he discovered traces of a struggle. It is two miles away from where the girl was found, and in a culvert. The footprints of a man and woman were found, and the measurement taken. The place is on a part which heretofore has been unexplored. The place is reached by two routes, and was likely reached by the companion of Sunday night by the Hartshorn farmer. Under this belief is a spot which has been described by someone in a search for blood. Within four or five miles of it is a considerable bush and surrounding it is a great many needle-woods. The line of the murder girl contained a cord, and her necktie was a number of the needle-woods. So it is not at all there is something in the new discovery.

Another sensational report has been industriously circulated to the effect that a detective slept in Carpenter's house on Monday and Tuesday nights, unknown to the family, and planned intelligence which enabled him to obtain proof of who the murderer was. This may be untrue, but there are many who believe in it. The feeling prevails that the coroner's jury will not hold Mr. Carpenter as the murderer, but this does not release him. The six jurors will agree as to the cause which led to the death of the girl, but two will refuse to implicate him in the verdict. As he is under arrest by virtue of a state warrant, his release can only be effected by a writ of habeas corpus or the preliminary hearing.

CARPENTER WANTS A HEARING.
The defendant is clamoring for a hearing. He has instructed his attorneys to use money in running the murderer down, and do all in their power to obtain information which will show who perpetrated the butchery. Mr. Beach, attorney for Carpenter, avers that the girl was several hundred dollars, and then investigated to a place by a Decatur person, who murdered and robbed her. This straw shows what the defense will be. The prisoner's conduct in jail contrasts wonderfully with that of a week ago. He rests well at night, and through the day reads a great deal. His family have not yet visited him in jail. Mr. Burns, the father of the girl, is here, and will remain until the coroner's jury has finished its investigation. He does not hesitate in pronouncing Carpenter the murderer, and asserts that the girl was lured to his office, subjected to the influence of a drug, possibly the liquor purchased at the Noto house, bound and gagged and kept a prisoner till Sunday night, when the deed was completed. The interest has increased within the past twenty-four hours by sensational reports, such as the finding of the value and new clues.

The Official Ohio Vote.
COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29.—The official canvass of the vote at the recent election has been made. The final official report on the state canvass is as follows: Judicial amendment—Yes, 400,932; no, 141,630; majority for amendment, 259,302. Prohibitory amendment—Yes, 323,189; no, 240,075. The amendment therefore fails by 89,114 votes. Regulation amendment—Yes, 99,849; no, 102,117. The amendment fails by 2,268. The total vote cast in the state was 731,310. The whole number of males over 21 in the state, according to the enumeration made by township assessors, was 508,833, of which 750,000 are white and 17,533 colored. The vote, therefore, at the late election was 82,325 short of a full vote. Gov. Foster has issued a proclamation declaring the judicial amendment carried. It should be remembered that the majorities for or against the amendments are calculated upon the whole vote of the state, and not upon the aggregate vote cast for and against each amendment.

Bulgaria Asserts Herself.
SOFIA, Oct. 29.—Prince Alexander held a cabinet council upon the question of the recall to St. Petersburg of his Russian advisers, Gen. Gens. Solovoff and Koubaev. It was decided to dismiss the Russian Col. Rodiger, acting minister of war, and also all the Russian officers serving in the Bulgarian service. Prince Alexander, in accordance with the action of the council, requested Col. Rodiger to resign the war portfolio. Col. Rodiger refused, and the order to leave Sofia. Col. Rodimoff was requested to assume the direction of the war office. It is feared that this action will produce strained relations with Russia.

The Virginia Campaign.
WASHINGTON CITY, Oct. 29.—Gov. Cameron, of Virginia, was in the city, and in the course of conversation said that he had no objection, now that he had informed himself by an industrious canvass of the state, to disclose what he expects the Republicans will accomplish. They will not be affected by the results of the Ohio election or by the decision of the supreme court in the civil-rights case. He had not heard these subjects alluded to in all his campaigning. "As I have asserted before to you," he said, "the Coalitionists will substantially repeat their victory of 1882."

HORROR ON THE RAIL.

Frightful Collision at Joliet Crossing, Illinois.

Two Trains Come Together With Terrible Force—Fatal Death of Three Men—A Passenger's Story.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—A collision occurred at 5:45 o'clock Sunday morning at Joliet crossing between a passenger train on the Pennsylvania road and a freight train on the Michigan Central road, which resulted in the instant death of three men, the doubtless fatal injury of a fourth, and the serious and perhaps fatal injury of a fifth. This statement, terrible as the facts of it are, conveys no idea of the marvelous escape of the long passenger train whose previous freight came within a second's time of an awful death. The facts in the case, given by Mr. L. G. Pratt, of the lithographing department of Culver, Page, Hoyne & Co., who was on board the passenger train, present a graphic picture of the whole thing.

The train was the regular one leaving Cincinnati Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, taking on at Richmond, Ind., the train from Columbus, Ohio, and the Louisville train, making up a train altogether of one Cincinnati sleeper, one Louisville sleeper, one Columbus sleeper, five passenger coaches and two baggage cars, under the charge of conductor E. Alexander. Mr. Pratt says of the scene immediately after the collision: "In company with Mr. Frank H. Ray, general western agent of the firm of P. J. Sorg & Co., Middleton, Ohio, I made an immediate survey of the situation. The first to meet our gaze was the mangled body of Engineer Norris of the passenger train, with both legs broken at the hips, a frightful fracture of the skull, both hands lacerated to a crisp, and every evidence of nearly all the ribs on the left side being broken. I reached down to feel his pulse, and you cannot realize the feeling that came over me when I touched my hand to that burned wrist. He did not seem rational, and I hardly think he realized his condition, and all he said was, 'Oh, my God! how cold I am!' repeated over and over. The next was the driver of the passenger train, who was taken out of the ditch into which he had been thrown from the cab, and carried out to the roadside. His head and face were badly lacerated, and undoubtedly he is badly hurt internally. There was then a general boisterous around among the ruins. But one man was missing at this time, and that was the flagman, and in the little signal station along side the track upon which the baggage car had fallen, was found the body of a man burnt to a crisp, which it is supposed must have been the flagman. His body was completely denuded of clothing and flesh as well, and there was nothing left of the poor fellow but a pile of burnt flesh and bare bones. All that was left to indicate that the remains were those of a man was the head, which was completely cleared of flesh, leaving the frontal bone bare.

"Passing from the east end of the ruins around to the opposite side, going back of the tender of the engine between that and one of the demolished freight freight cars, Mr. Ray exclaimed, 'Isn't that a man?' asking me to look for myself. It was not light enough to see well, but we discerned that what he had seen was a body. Our first impulse was to ascertain whether life was extinct, and investigation resulted in finding the person dead. The body was covered by several trucks, one truck completely covering him. The head was nearly severed from the body, one hand out, and the body horribly mangled and crushed, as the full weight of the train was on top of him. Up to this time the engineer of the freight train had not been found, but we had been told by his fireman that the engineer had jumped from his engine at the same time that he (the fireman) did. About a half hour afterward the engineer was found badly injured. Subsequent investigation by the physician proved that he was injured internally, and within a short time he was a raging maniac. In the baggage car was Baggage-master Purcell. His car was completely outside down, the one or two wheels remaining being the only things that met our gaze. A more complete upsetting could not be imagined. In conversation with that gentleman relative to his escape, he could only say that he did not know how he got out of the car, but he did so unhurt. It was one of the most singular things of the accident.

"What was the number on board your train?" "The coaches and sleepers alternated, my car being the third from the engine. There were probably on board from 150 to 200, the sleepers being all filled, at least in the lower berths."

THIRTEEN PERSONS HURT.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 29.—A few minutes after 8 o'clock Saturday night the west-bound mail train on the Chicago & Alton road was derailed and badly wrecked. One man was killed, and thirteen persons were injured. The wreckage was found in a ravine, and the train was completely outside down, the one or two wheels remaining being the only things that met our gaze. A more complete upsetting could not be imagined. In conversation with that gentleman relative to his escape, he could only say that he did not know how he got out of the car, but he did so unhurt. It was one of the most singular things of the accident.

THE EARTHQUAKE BELT.

Renovations of the Earthquakes at the Eastern End of the Mediterranean.
LONDON, Oct. 28.—There are renovations of the earthquakes at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, involving an extensive loss of life and property. Smyrna had been warned in time and the people were prepared to escape, so that the loss of life was small, but the loss of property was enormous. The walls, which have stood since the Crusades, were thrown down, the ancient aqueduct was destroyed, and the mosques and churches ruined. The people are panic-stricken, and the town is temporarily almost deserted. The inhabitants are camping on the frontier. It is said that in some of the smaller towns the loss of life has been very great. The Aegean sea was agitated in many places.

The shocks have been felt in Greece, and at Capatavia alone 170 persons are reported as having been hurt.

The Second Suez Canal.
LONDON, Oct. 29.—The secretary of the Steamship Owners' association has written a letter to Earl Granville, the British foreign secretary, urging that fresh action be taken with the concurrence of the association, looking to the cutting of the second canal across the Isthmus of Suez.

BLOWS THAT WILL TELL.

A Couple of Laws that Would Impress the Mormons.

WASHINGTON CITY, Oct. 28.—Delegates Cannon, of Utah, talks quite freely with reference to the Mormon problem. Mr. Cannon was asked this: "What possible objection can your people have to a marriage law which shall require of you the same publicity as to marriage licenses from the civil authorities as is required of American citizens in every state?" Mr. Cannon said: "We should not so much object to the public record if it were not to be used as a means of persecution. Probably the commission will recommend that, and doubtless congress will pass it. We expect it, and we shall obey it as we do all laws. There have been published recently some monstrous stories as to the endowment house ceremony. They were outrageously false. It is said, for instance, that the sexes were present with their clothing. The truth is no ceremony could be purer than the marriage of the endowment house. The clothing of the candidates is removed in separate apartments for the sexes, and what is called the temple clothing is put on. It is an entirely proper service."

It was suggested to Mr. Cannon that the commission might recommend that suffrage be abolished in Utah. He was asked what effect that would have. He said he had not expected that. But that if such a plan should be adopted it would be received with great indignation. I do not say it would raise a storm, for whatever happens we are a peaceful and law-abiding people." Mr. Cannon said that the abolition of suffrage would not destroy polygamy. "What, then, can destroy polygamy?" He said: "We believe that it is a divine institution, and that nothing can destroy it. It must be a question between God, the constitution and the force of the United States."

GEORGE AND CARRIE.

How the Girl and the Young Man Will "Gold Drive."

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—There is a flutter among the members of "the upper middle class" over the reported intentions of Mr. George Gould, son of Jay Gould, to Miss Carrie Astor, daughter of one of Gotham's most distinguished millionaires. Miss Carrie Astor is said to be a charming young lady, and the settlement which has brought her and Mr. Gould together is a very large one. It is said to be a marriage of convenience, and that the young lady is quite as rich in her own right as her reputed lower class over hope to be. "To be candid," remarked a prominent member of the Manhattan club, "she has more money than George can spend, leaving the matter of his patrimony out of the question altogether."

IRISH MANUFACTURES.

The Land League Agitation Has Given Them a Boom.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Michael Davitt telegraphs: It has not been sufficiently insisted upon by those who have had to defend the land league against calumny and abuse that the latest phase of Irish agitation has conferred many benefits upon Ireland, apart from the purely agrarian reforms which it has won for the country. It has been conveniently overlooked by its enemies that it was an industrial as well as a land league, both in name and in scope of operations, and if the triumph in the direction of an industrial revival have not been as marked as its gains on the land question, they are neither insignificant in character nor unworthy of being added to the record of a movement which was organized for the general good of our people. A few years ago every store window in Dublin and other of our large cities would contain advertisements of articles of "London make" or Sheffield, Birmingham, or Manchester production. Scarcely anything would appear to have any value for the purveying public unless it had a stamp of English workmanship upon it. A marked change is noticeable in this respect, and now "Irish manufacture" appears to be a necessary recommendation. Indeed, the desire to encourage home industries is so great that the practice of exposing English-made goods as "Irish manufacture" is extensively resorted to as a means of pushing their sale.

Ingersoll on the Civil Rights Decision.

WASHINGTON CITY, Oct. 29.—In response to a call signed by Fred Douglass, B. K. Bruce, and other leading public men, Col. Ingersoll will repeat his speech on the civil rights next Friday. In the language of the call, "it will require such burning words as fall from your lips to arouse the moral sense of the nation to the enormity of this practice" of treating colored people in hotels and on the public highways of the country with impunity.

The Roman Church in America.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The impression prevails both here and in Paris that a new and significant departure is about to be inaugurated in the management of the Catholic church in the United States. Those of the American bishops who have visited London on their return have all had long conferences with the metropolitan clergy of the higher order. Bishop Feath, of Chicago, had several conferences with Cardinal Manning, one of which took place at the Windsor hotel and lasted two hours.

Lansdowne a Marked Man.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The marquis of Lansdowne's friends continue to give apprehensive for his personal safety in his new position of governor general of Canada, as the Fenians have made explicit threats against his life. The marquis has been notoriously imprudent in stirring up against him the hatred of the Irish extremists.

The Sultan's Fashion Edict.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The sultan of Turkey has issued a decree condemning modes of dress now followed by the ladies of his empire. He orders that the heaviest material shall cover the features, the lace fringes shall be discarded, and that the dress generally shall be simple and plain.

Do not neglect a common cold, it will result in disease and perhaps death. Down's Expectorant cures it at once. Sold by Stearns & Baker.
